Campbell Paterson vs. Stanley Gibbons

An aid to identifying stamps using different catalogue references

The background to creating this index was that, while I use the Campbell Paterson catalogue¹ for managing my collection, a large number of dealers, auction houses and exhibitions in the UK use the Stanley Gibbons² numbering and it was difficult to relate the two.

The two catalogues use a totally different method of ordering the issues – Stanley Gibbons focusses on the date of issue as the primary index whereas Campbell Paterson uses first a major type grouping and then the face value. The index covers the period from 1855 to 1952.

The index is in two parts: the first is Stanley Gibbons to Campbell Paterson. All entries in the Part 1 Catalogue are cross referenced and I am using the 2001 edition as that is the only one that I have readily available.

The second is Campbell Paterson to Stanley Gibbons using the same data. As the Campbell Paterson is a specialised catalogue not all references are included but I have indicated where a major listing is missing from the Stanley Gibbons.

The notation used is:-

 indicates that I haven't been able to find a matching reference.

? indicates some doubt – this particularly applies to colour shades.

The index includes the back-of-book items where available. It does not include Ross Dependency which is in the Campbell Paterson catalogue.

Although it is intended to be as accurate as possible, errors will always exist but I hope that it will at least take you close to the required entry to be useful. Any corrections will be gratefully received.

Thanks,

Rick Parsons rick@west-penwith.org.uk
